Adventures Of Huckleberry Finn

by Mark Twain

Huckleberry Finn tells of his adventures traveling down the Mississippi River on a raft with an escaped slave, and of the many people they encounter, including a pair of swindlers and two families in a feud.

Benjamin Franklin: An American Life

by Walter Isaacson

Chronicles the founding father's life and his multiple careers as a shopkeeper, writer, inventor, media baron, scientist, diplomat, business strategist, and political leader, while showing how his faith in the wisdom of the common citizen helped to forge an American national identity based on the virtues of its middle class.

Big Little Lies

by Liane Moriarty

An annual school Trivia Night ends in a disastrous riot leaving one parent dead in what appears to be a tragic accident, but evidence shows it might have been premeditated.

Blood, Bones, And Butter: The Inadvertent Education Of A Reluctant Chef

by Gabrielle Hamilton

The chef of New York's Prune restaurant presents an unflinching account of her search for meaning and purpose in the food-central rural New Jersey home of her youth, marked by a first chicken kill, an international backpacking tour, and the opening of a first restaurant.

A Walk In The Woods: Rediscovering America On The Appalachian Trail

by Bill Bryson

A wry account of the author's adventurous and arduous trek along the Appalachian Trail, and of its natural pleasures, human eccentrics, and offbeat comforts.

The Way-Back Room: A Memoir Of A Detroit Childhood

by Mary Minock

An American memoir that tells the story of a girl, born in the mid-1940s, and is set against the blue-collar grit and texture of multi-ethnic, pre-Vatican II, southwest Detroit.

Wild: From Lost To Found On The Pacific Crest Trail

by Cheryl Strayed

The story of an ambitious 1,100-mile solo hike that broke down a young woman reeling from personal crisis and catastrophe, and built her back up again.

Winter's Bone

by Daniel Woodrell

Ree Dolly's father, who is facing a drug charge and has put their house up as bond, has gone missing and Ree, who is caring for her two younger brothers and a mentally ill mother, must find him to save her family.
