The Golden Couple
by Greer Hendricks & Sarah Pekkanen
I enjoyed this psychological thriller. A Golden Couple, c'mon... you know they are not really golden, none ever are. But this couple is tarnished for sure and an unconventional therapist tries to polish them up. Some good twists and false leads in this page turner.

Moon Lake
by Joe R. Lansdale
Set in the 60s and 70s, a writer returns to a small town where his father tried to kill them both when he was 13. I love the humor and the banter between the characters (and the inner monologue quips by the main character) - despite the very gruesome crimes. Kind of southern gothic.

The Husbands
by Chandler Baker
A Stepford Husband! What woman wouldn't want one of those! A wife/mother/lawyer finds a beautiful house in a gated community - where the husbands discuss the best stain remover during a dinner party. After someone dies in a house fire, she realizes things may not be perfect after all. A fun ride!

The Boys: A Memoir of Hollywood
by Ron & Clint Howard
This is an entertaining memoir by the Howard boys. It is mostly about their growing up years, not much of their adult lives. For those who grew up in the 60's and 70's, there are some great "I remember that show!" moments. The audio is narrated by the authors.
