BOOK ADVENTURE: EXPLORE THE WORLD WITH MAPS

Map your neighborhood. Take a walk around your neighborhood, and make note of interesting landmarks. When you get home, draw a map of the area you walked through.

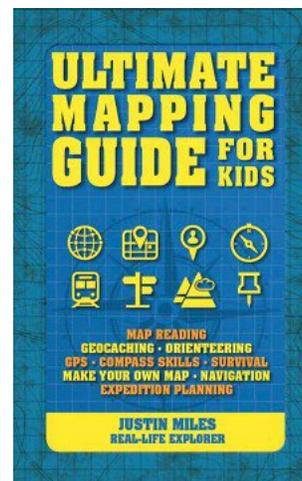

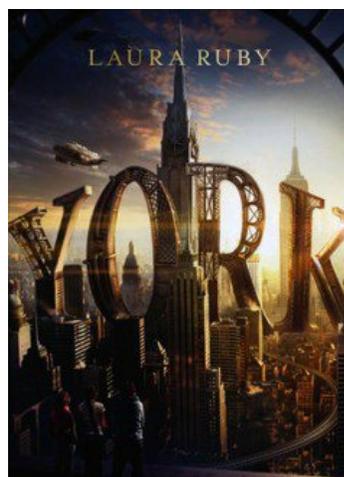

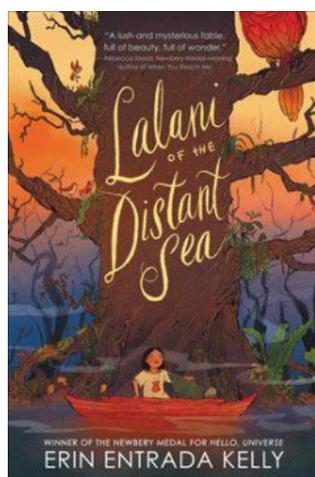

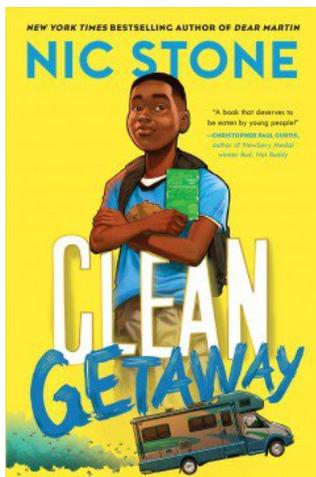

Orient yourself. With a grown-up's help, follow the directions at the following website to make and test your own compass:
<https://www.nps.gov/articles/compass.htm>.

Create a treasure hunt. Hide small things around your home. Make a treasure map, and have a member of your household try to find what you've hidden.

Explore the world online. If you have access to the internet, go to Google Maps. Click street view and try to find your house. What else can you find? The Cambridge Public Library? The Taj Mahal? A sheep?

Map a story. Ask a family member or friend to tell you a short story about an adventure, either real or from their imagination. Work together to draw a map of what that adventure might look like.

Create your own world. Imagine a magical land. What would be in it? Unicorn playgrounds? Chocolate waterfalls? Dragon caves? Draw a map of that world.
