

Immigrant Voices

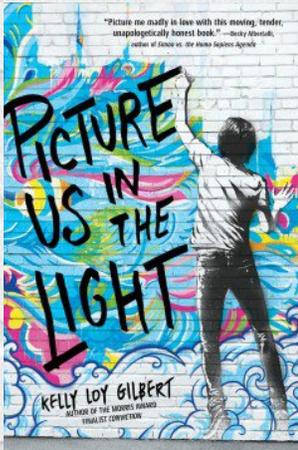

Celebrate Teen Immigrant American Stories This June!

Evan Panos doesn't know where he fits in. His strict Greek immigrant parents see him as a disappointment. And his friend Henry has somehow become attractive over the summer. Evan's only escape is drawing in an abandoned church that feels as lonely as he is. Henry makes him believe that he's more than his mother's harsh words and terrifying abuse. But as things with Henry change, and his mother's abuse escalates, Evan has to decide how to find his voice in a world where he has survived by avoiding attention at all costs.

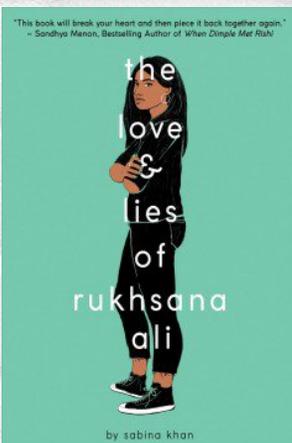

Julia is not your perfect Mexican daughter. That was Olga's role. Then a tragic accident leaves Olga dead and Julia left behind to reassemble the shattered pieces of her family. Their mother seems to channel her grief into pointing out every way Julia has failed. But it's not long before Julia discovers that Olga might not have been as perfect as everyone thought. Was Olga really what she seemed? Or was there more to her sister's story? And either way, how can Julia even attempt to live up to a seemingly impossible ideal?

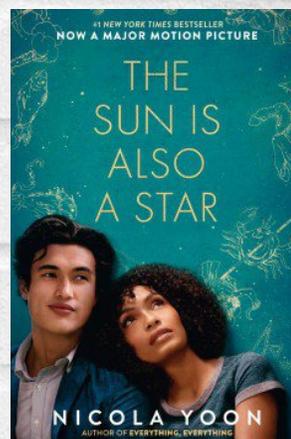

High school senior Danny Cheng, who lives in a San Francisco Bay Area, lives in a town filled with "the overachieving kids of tech titans." While not from a wealthy family, Danny is an overachiever, having won a full scholarship to the Rhode Island School of Design. But this great news is overshadowed by Danny's dread of being separated from his best friend, Harry Wong, and his discovery of a box of papers that will begin the unraveling of closely guarded family secrets.

17-year-old Mei Lu's parents have already planned the perfect life for her: graduate from MIT, become a doctor, and marry a Taiwanese Ivy Leaguer. When she reconnects with her estranged older brother, Mei begins to wonder if she'll ever be able to truly be herself without disappointing her parents or abandoning her Taiwanese culture.

17-year-old Rukhsana Ali tries her hardest to live up to her conservative Muslim parents' expectations, but lately she's finding that impossible to do. If she can just hold out another few months, she will be away from her parents' watchful eyes at college, where she can finally be herself. But when she is caught kissing her girlfriend Ariana, her parents take her to back to Bangladesh. There, Rukhsana finds the perspective she's been looking for in her grandmother's diary. Can she fight for the happiness she deserves without losing her family's support?

Korean-American teen poet Daniel Bae and tough-as-nails Jamaican Natasha Kingsley meet -- and fall for each other -- over one magical day. Sparks immediately fly between these two strangers, who might never have met had fate not given them a push. With just hours left on the clock in what looks to be her last day in the U.S., Natasha is fighting against her family's deportation just as fiercely as she's fighting her growing feelings for Daniel.