

#ICYMI

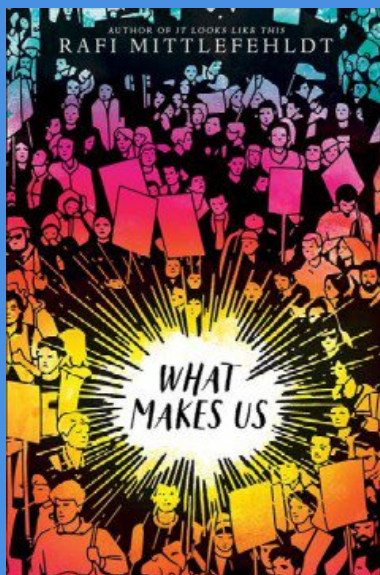

New(ish) Books You May Have Missed!

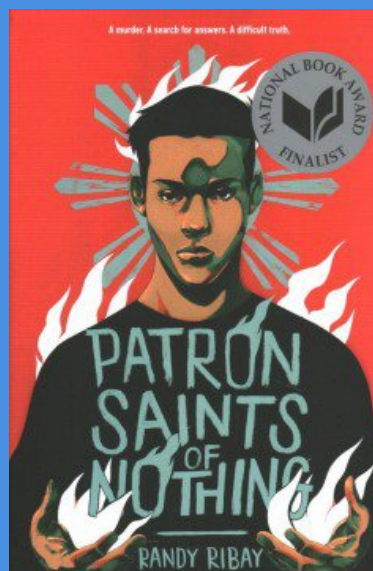

An historical fiction thriller about the notorious serial killer of Eastern European history, told from the perspective of one of Elizabeth Báthory's new servants! First in a series.

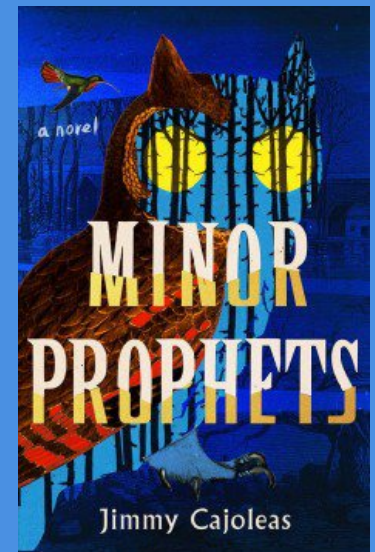

Allie, a Muslim American teen of Central Asian decent, navigates life in small-town Georgia in this realistic romance while embracing her religious identity.

Eran, a teen social justice activist, learns a terrible secret after a peaceful protest he organized becomes national news...It turns out that his absentee father is a convicted terrorist! How will Eran deal with this dark legacy?

When Jay learns that his cousin Jun was killed as part of the Philippine government's war on drugs, Jay travels to the Philippines, a country where he hasn't lived since he was a young boy, to attempt to find out the real story of Jun's life and death.

Lee has always had creepy hallucinations. When his mother dies, Lee and his sister move to their grandmother's ranch. But why hadn't their mother ever let them meet their grandma? What do Lee's "visions" mean? Learn the answers in this eerie, atmospheric mystery story.